

Alexandra Solowij Watkins

“I make structures for the landscape of the human body. My fascination with structure, negative space and with indigenous architecture translates into dimensional, intimate and wearable pieces. Frequently I incorporate crystal formations or uncut stones, and thus bring the natural world closer to the wearer.”

History

Born in Poland, Alexandra Solowij Watkins is a studio jeweler and co-owner of Atelier Janiyé. She studied fashion design in Paris, France, painting in Montréal, Canada, and jewelry and silversmithing in Boston, Massachusetts at the Boston Museum School. While she is represented in numerous galleries and collections, Solowij Watkins sells primarily through Atelier Janiyé, Inc.
